MARKING NEEDED ON REEF — BOAT OWNERS

The grounding of the 90ft. barque The New Endeavour on a reef about a mile off Altona last Sunday would not have occurred had the Ports and Harbors Association heeded a warning from the Seaholme Boatowners Association.

Seaholme professional fisherman Ken Wise said yesterday that association secretary Bill Lock had written to the Ports and Harbors Association about 18 months ago saying that a marker should be placed on the reef.

Mr. Wise said a marker was on the reef since the early 1900s when coal and explosives were loaded at Altona.

He said it had been broken in a storm about three years ago and had not been replaced.

Mr. Wise said although the reef was a heavy one situated about four feet below the water line, it was only hazardous to boating as it was not in a regular shipping area.

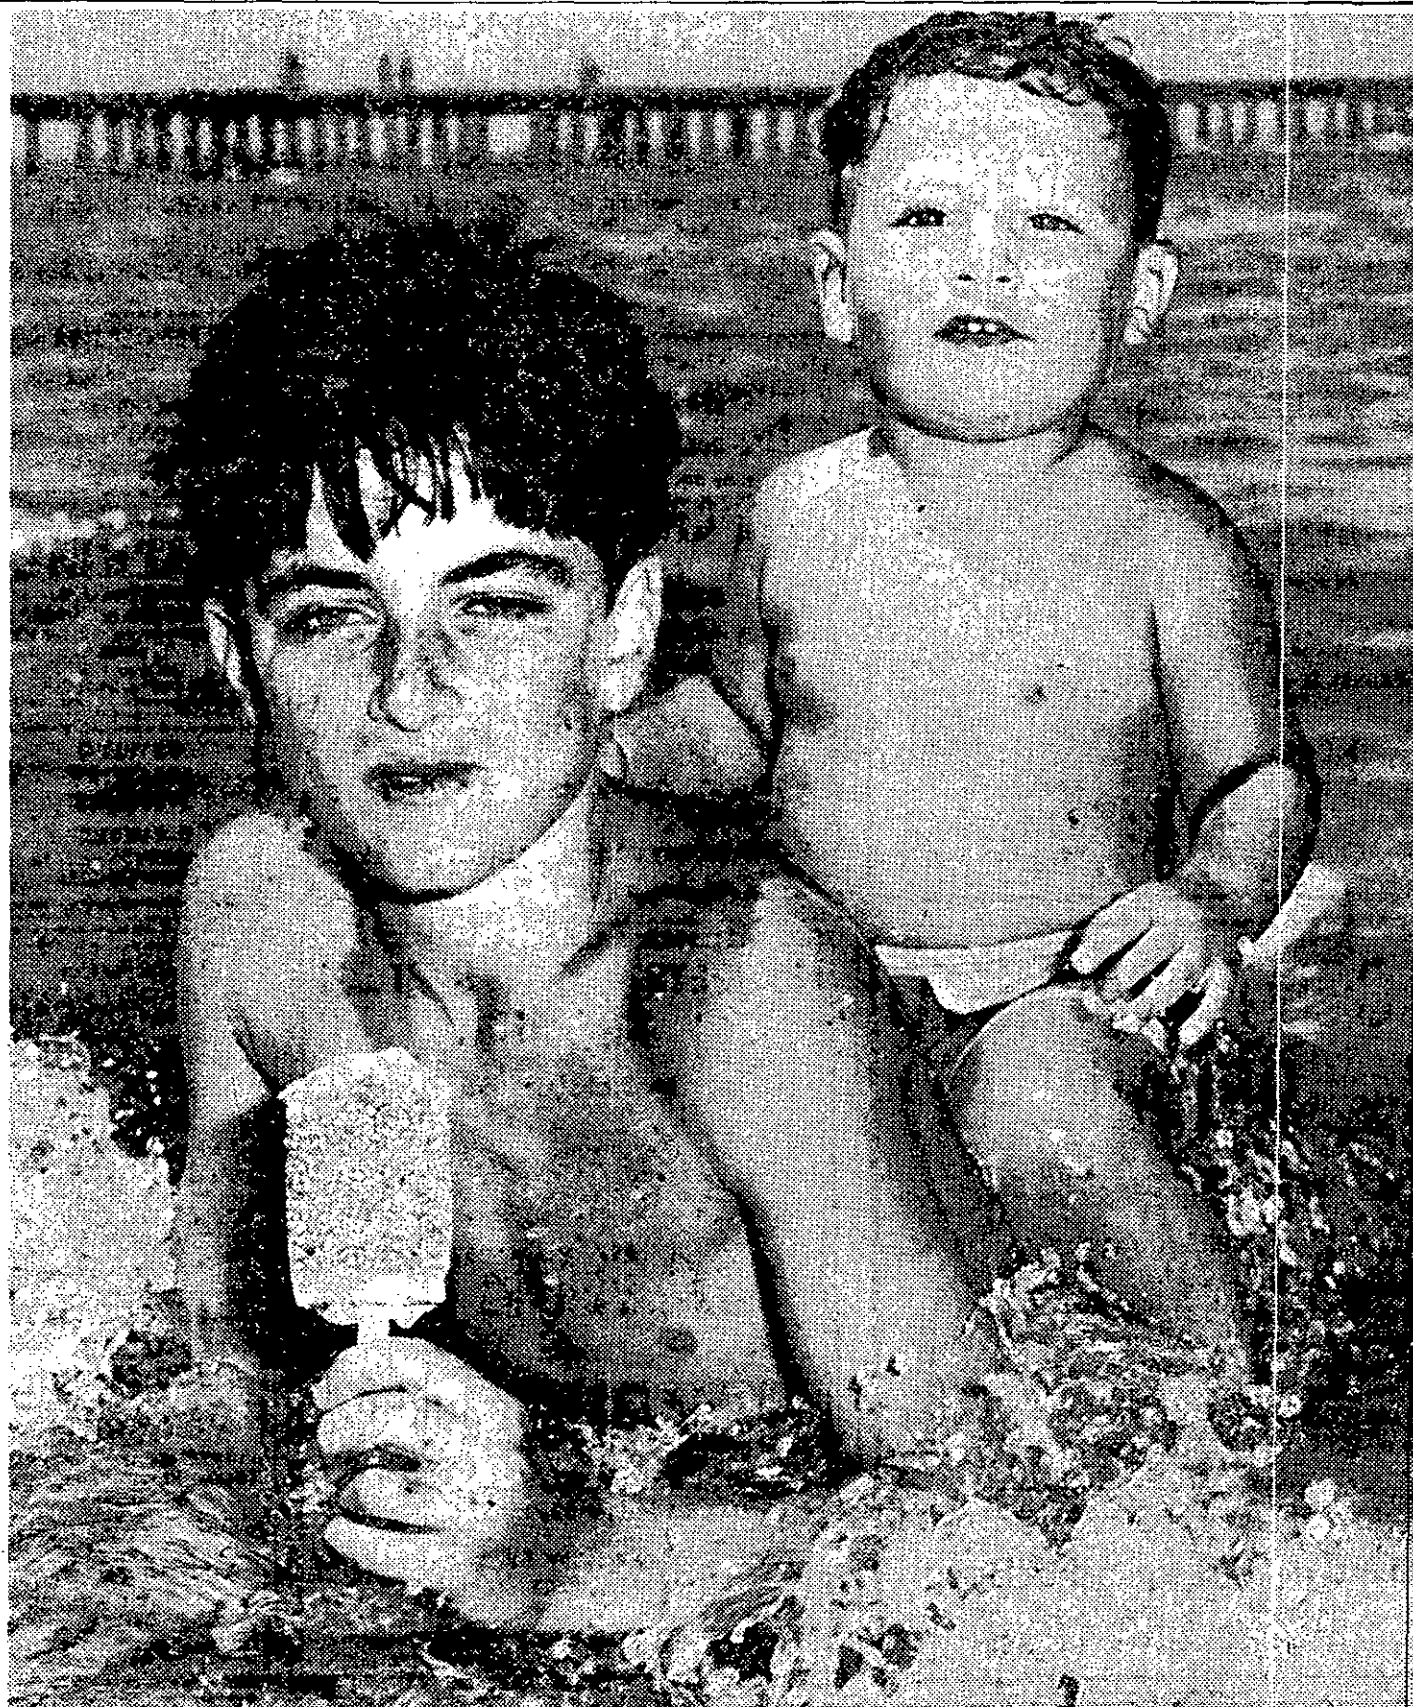

He said the only other time a boat had run aground on the reef was in the 1963-64 scallop season when a scallop boat had gone off course in a fog.

Mr. Wise said the reef was situated about three quarters off a mile south east of Altona and a mile south of the rifle range.

He said the marker previously used on the reef was like a telegraph pole which was about 10 ft. out of the water.

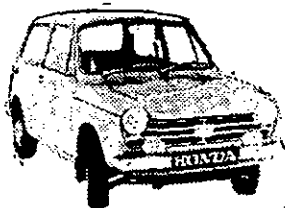

The New Endeavour was on a pleasure cruise on Port Phillip Bay with 92 passengers on board when it ran aground.

Mr. Wise said the boats had some difficulty in unloading the passengers at the pier because a section of the landing which had been damaged just before Christmas had been cut away instead of being repaired.

Twelve-year-old Tony Ebeyer and his 'jockey' Mark Abela, 20 months, both of Footscray, fall down in the shallows at Altona beach.

- Australia ranks 14th in the world in social services yet is fourth on the list of wealthy nations.
- After recent pension increases, all those in need are worse off proportionately than at the end of the war.
- Whereas $30 million is spent on mental health, only $10 million is spent on welfare.

SOCIAL SERVICE SYSTEM 'ON POINT OF COLLAPSE'

Australia's social service system is on the point of collapse, said Sunshine's director of welfare services, Mr. Colin Benjamin, this week.

"After the recent pension increases, all those in need are worse off proportionately than at the end of the war," he said.

One class of pensioner that suffers badly under Australia's apparent apathy for those in need is the deserted wife.

A recent poverty report by Melbourne University's Institute of Applied Economic Research showed that one-parent families with no mother or no father represents a very high percentage of poverty, even after receipt of social service benefits.

The report gave two cases of deserted wives in extreme poverty.

The first had two girls, aged eight and six and was living in two rooms, which were cold and dark, had no carpet and was inadequately furnished. She paid $8 rent and the landlord was "friendly and helpful".

Her two sons had been adopted by others and she had ceased work due to ill health. She was 26.

The flat consisted of one living room cum kitchen and one bath. The family shared a bathroom, lavatory and laundry with five others. To heat water they had to boil a kettle and the rent included gas and electricity.

The family's weekly income was $23.90. Rent was $8 and food $12.36, leaving $3.54 for all other things.

The second case was a widow with three children aged from six to 12. Her weekly income was $22, of which she paid $2 rent for a dilapidated old home whose roof needed repair.

Long wait

She spend $17.85 on food, leaving $1.65 to pay for everything else, including electricity and gas which came to $2 a week.

These are extreme cases yet quite feasible under the present social service system.

I made inquiries about the mechanics of granting a widow's pension to a deserted wife.

I found the average waiting period between the time the wife is deserted and the time she receives her first cheque is seven weeks.

If a wife is paying $20 a week rent, has three children to support and no money in the bank, it is impossible for her to cope.

The State Social Welfare Department can pay up to a total maximum of $30 to a family in destitute circumstances.

Yet mostly this money is paid at only $10 a time.

Even if a deserted wife received the $30 in a lump sum, it is only enough to pay one week's rent.

What of the other six weeks and how does she feed her family?

These are questions unanswered in the red tape of the social welfare system.

Mr. J. Wade, Footscray registrar of Commonwealth Social Services, said the basic widow's pension was $44 a fortnight if the recipient had one child.

There is also a $2 a week rent allowance.

Widows' pensions are broken up into different scales.

A class A widow receives $39 a fortnight plus $5 for the first child and $7 for each other child.

No pension

Mr. Wade said if a deserted wife or widow — classed as one under the social service scheme — has no children, she will receive no pension unless she is over 50.

According to the means test, the maximum allowance income for a class A widow is $10 a week for herself and $4 a week for each child.

Assets on hand must not exceed $4500.

What exactly happens when a local woman is deserted by her husband?

If it's the first time, she waits from between one and two weeks.

Then she'll probably go to the Social Service office in Nicholson Street, Footscray, where she'll be told she won't be eligible for Commonwealth assistance until her husband has been gone for six months.

So she'll be sent to the Family Assistance Section of the State Social Welfare Department in the city, to apply for bridging assistance.

An officer there will tell her the law requires her to sue for maintenance before she becomes eligible for a pension.

Once she's agreed to do that, she fills out an application for assistance.

About a week later, an inspector is sent to her address to see if "she really lives there", to check bank books and to form an impression of the family's needs.

Two or three days later, if things go smoothly, the inspector makes his report and the inspector makes his report and about a week after that, the Department approves the application.

Asked how long it takes for the deserted wife to receive her first cheque, Mr. J. Laity of the Family Assistance Section said "about 10 days".

But he said this period would be longer, depending upon the amount of work the department had.

While she's waiting and the bills pile up, the woman receives $10 food vouchers from local benevolent societies.

But she gets no money apart from that special grant if she's destitute.

So if she has no generous friends and no money in the bank, it's just "bad luck" as far as legislation is concerned.

The Footscray office of the Commonwealth Social Department has been open for four months.

Mr. Wade said that from October 19 to January 4 inclusive, the office handled 108 widows' pension cases, of which about 40 per cent. were deserted mothers.

He said most women who apply for benefits are from the lower income brackets.

Other sources suggest that claimants from the western suburbs are on the average in more needy circumstances than those from other areas of Melbourne.

Mr. Benjamin said the state of the nation's social security was a symptom of a complacent society.

"We are all to blame," he said, "because we have accepted this state of affairs."

Migration

"We had a very good system at the end of the war and we ranked high in the world in social service."

"Sweden is now most advanced and we rank about 14th between Ireland and Iceland."

"Yet we are fourth on the list of the world's wealthiest nations."

Mr. Benjamin said the situation in Australia had become so bad that migration was "drying up" because Europeans could get better social service conditions at home.

He said a case must be put to the people for tax rises to improve social welfare.

"People aren't opposed to money being spent here but to the waste of expenditure," he said.

"Welfare rates low on the Government's list of priorities. Whereas $30 million is spent on mental health, only $10 million is spent on welfare."

"This gives you an idea. If a person is dangerous to us we spend up big."

"Yet there are at the moment one in 16 in desperate poverty and one in six in general poverty."

Mr. Benjamin agrees with the ACTU policy of making social service benefits 30 per cent. of the national average earnings and of giving mothers an additional 10 per cent. and 5 per cent. for each child.

He also agrees with President Nixon's proposal for a minimum income supplemented by specific assistance for people in need.

Mr. Benjamin is in favor of a system of immediate assistance, before investigation.

He said people like clergymen, justices of the peace, policemen or the like should be empowered to declare a person in need of assistance.

"Once the immediate pressure is off, an investigation can take place to confirm or challenge the claim," he said.

"A deserted wife not only has economic problems to face but grave social problems arising from isolation and social stigma."

"Scientific studies have shown that one in three deserted wives is forced to find another man for emotional and economic reasons to cope with the situation."

"This is only one of the reasons why a national enquiry into social welfare is long overdue."

"At the moment people are treated as file numbers."

A history of land development in Altona

The development of Altona as it is today occurred in the late 1920's with the selling of large parcels of land. From 1926 the Estate group attempted to sell land in West Altona, details of which are as follows...

Written by ALLAN J. CLARK, Hon. Secretary of the Altona Historical Society.

"TONKIN ESTATE" or "TONKIN'S PURCHASE" — an area of 100 acres fronting Merton and a Government street north-east of Laverton Station was, it appears, sold to a subsidiary Co. of Altona Beach Estates in July 1925 for £87/10/- ($175) per acre, then sub-divided and mostly resold to some person.

The street names on the Estate were place names such as Henty, Albury, Mansfield, Newmarket, Harcourt, Cora, Danglow, Dunkley etc., but the area even today is still a paddock and will probably never see housing as it now is adjoining Slough's Industrial Estate.

CEMORTA COMPANY — This area of just over 47 acres bounded by Wren Street, Lilly Street (now Grieve Parade), Blyth Street and Maidstone Street was purchased by this Co. in September 1924 for £120 ($240) per acre.

Very little building activity occurred in this area until after World War II and it was quite probable that the Company was unable to sell much of the Estate either.

It seems that the area was absorbed into the later Western Beach Estate of which more anon.

This area was developed for housing about 1950 by an unknown estate firm (part by Willmore and Randell) and is now fully developed.

"PURNELL'S PURCHASE" or "The Aviary" — This area of 150 acres — bounded by Purnell, Street, Maidstone Street, Blyth Street and the Golf Course was bought for £40 per acre by an unknown subsidiary of Altona Beach Estate in 1924 and subdivided.

This area about 1927 became part of Western Beach Estate and its subsequent history will be found under that heading.

"BEACH VIEW ESTATE" — This area faced the south side of the Geelong railway the eastern border being Maidstone Street — "a beautiful tree lined avenue." The southern border was Park Street.

This area was valued at £100 ($200) per acre in July 1925 when the New South Wales Realty Co. (another subsidiary) took over the land.

This company, in an effort to sell the estate built a new station at Maidstone Street named 'Galvin' after the Werribee Shire president of the time, in late 1927.

A brochure issued at this time stated that "Beach View Estate is ideally situated for workers at both Newport and the C.O.R. Refineries."

Blocks were 50' by 150' with 20' by 128'-140' shop sites near the station. There was a covenant stating that no main building of less value than £350 ($700) shall be erected on any lot.

The writer can only remember one house on the estate and that was in ruins when observed. It is doubtful whether many blocks were sold, as the descending Depression ruined any hopes of development.

Since then nearly all the estate has been re-zoned as industrial and is at present part of Slough Estates Ltd. the only portion remaining today is the block Morrow, Maidstone, Galvin Streets and Park

Parade which incidentally has not been used as the original promoters envisaged.

It was set aside as a 10 acre park; today it is residential having been part of Galvin Strip Estates 1 and 2 sold by Willmore and Randall in 1954.

GREEN MEADOWS ESTATE — OR KENT FARMLETS

This area of land adjacent to the Sea View Estate between Kororoit Creek Road and the Geelong railway was advertised on the basis of closeness to industries and as investment possibilities.

The blocks were very large and this fact enabled the promoters to later offer the estate as 'Kent Farmlets' suitable for raising fowls etc.

To try to offset the depression and raise more capital a Company 'Galvin Garden Suburb' was incorporated on 3/4/1929 with £10,000 capital — however after a vain effort to boom the two estates the Company was disbanded on 14/1/1931.

This ill-starred venture was in fact only another subsidiary co. of Sir Arthur Rickard, Chairman of 'Altona Beach Estates'.

The New South Wales Realty Company Sub-division — came into existence in 1925 and was the area bounded by Blyth and Somers in the north, Lilly Street the seafront and extended into part of the area now owned by the Koorringal Golf Club but very little development occurred.

It should be mentioned here that Maidstone Street came into existence in the mid 1920s to allow for a more direct connection to Geelong Road via Kororoit Creek Road.

WESTERN BEACH ESTATE

In about 1927 Purnells Purchase, Cremorta Co. and the N.S.W. Realty Estates were combined to form the Western Beach Estate.

This area of 276 acres was, the Company hoped, the answer to their financial problems but to make sure the property sold, the company took the following steps: — offered the railway department at least two alternate routes through the estate, one route was parallel with Wren Street across Maidstone Street then parallel with Purnell Street then through the golf links to Queen St. then either parallel with that street to Laverton or to cross Queen Street on to Point Cook.

The other was to curve off Railway Street at Fanny (now Rayner) Street continue south west to the corner of Sommers Parade and Maidstone Street with a station there then straight on to join the other proposed route at Queen Street. The latter route was chosen but subsequent events have now favored the former route.

The next item the Company did was to build 20 or so houses on the 'Aviary Estate', to try to attract buyers and builders. These so called 'mine houses' (because of their closeness to the coal mines) were designed by Mr. A. W. Purnell, a leading Collins Street Architect and whose name is perpetuated in the street on this estate.

According to newspapers of the period, the idea was to construct at least 100 of these cottages, whilst another paper stated that the railway would be extended on to the estate if 400 houses were built.

At least two attempts were made to extend the railway to Sommers Parade in 1928-29 but to no avail. The slogan on the land advertisements of the period was "Watch Altona Grow".

"Today Altona's population is 4000 (actually about 1700) in 10 years it will have grown to 30,000", announced an advert of 1927.

When it was decided to construct an adequate water system for Altona the Company's success seemed assured but it was not to be. Hardly any land was sold in 1928-29 and none was sold in 1930. All the company could hope for was that its coal mine would pay, but it too soon failed.

The Company lost all its capital by 1935 and it was only the fact that the Company owed so much land tax to the Government that it was forced to stay in existence.

A large section of the remaining land was sold in 1938-39 to persons unknown but at such a loss that it wouldn't pay the first mortgage.

The last of the Company's land about 1400 acres was sold about 1949 at approx. £40 ($80) per acre to Willmore and Randell and Slough Estates and the Altona Beach Estates Co. Ltd. ceased to exist on 26/6/1953.

The total loss to the Company was £230,692/6/6 ($461,384.65) values.

Competitors from the Altona Centre have been invited by Corio to compete in nominated events which will be conducted at the Corio Oval on Sunday, January 24.

Altona Centre Club managers have been approached for the purpose of nominating selected competitors, who will be permitted to compete in one event only, so that as many children as possible will be given the opportunity to compete with other children from the following centres:

Williamstown, Werribee, Sunshine, Coburg, Dandenong, Box Hill, and Nunawading.

The Altona Centre selectors have also made provisional selections of competitors to contest the Victorian Zone Championships on behalf of the Altona Centre and these names have been sent to the respective Club Managers for verification.

As this list is to be finalised
